

Company Name

Pharmacelera (<https://www.pharmacelera.com>)

Company Description

Pharmacelera is a young and ambitious company that combines High-Performance Computing and computational chemistry for developing disruptive solutions applied at the early stages of drug discovery, aiming at improving pharmaceutical R+D productivity. The company is fully committed to research and innovation and it currently collaborates with the Computational Biology and Drug Design research group at Universitat de Barcelona. Pharmacelera's team combines people with information technology, computational chemistry, bioinformatics and commercial background and it has opportunities for professional growth in all these disciplines. The company is currently located in the beautiful neighborhood of Barceloneta within the Barcelona Tech City facilities (Pier01), an extremely dynamic environment for start-ups and entrepreneurship.

Role

Support for commercial and business development

Profile

We are looking for a student willing to work with us for 6 months as a student in practices. Although the company will value candidates with some background on biology, chemistry, medicine and/or bioinformatics, this will not be a mandatory requirement. In fact, Pharmacelera's top management will pay special attention to motivation, autonomy, energy for continuous learning, team working abilities and communication skills. No working experience is required. Good English reading and writing skills are required.

Tasks

The student will work with Pharmacelera's top management for 6 months, providing the necessary support to gather and process strategic information, discuss it internally in order to deploy the commercial strategy of the company, participate on strategic discussions for business development, increase the company's network and opportunities and strengthen the relations with all business stakeholders.

Offer details

- Join Pharmacelera for 6 months part time (time schedule at best convenience) or full time
- Possibility to work remotely if desired
- Dynamic and motivating environment in a start-up with an international mindset
- Internal mentor for improving his/her commercial and business development skills, for guiding his/her professional growth and for exploiting future opportunities
- The company may have open permanent positions after summer

Contact

email: info@pharmacelera.com

Phone: +34 654.957.229